

My name is Vivian Mook Baer and in 1987, after surviving multiple surgeries, transfusions, and critically serious medical problems, I was diagnosed with Fibromyalgia and CFIDS. My doctor in New York prescribed an injectable drug called Kutapressin which I relied on for years to ameliorate my immune dysfunction problems, exhaustion, pain, brain fog, sleep disorders, and a plethora of symptoms that made it impossible to function with a modicum of normalcy, and fulfill my responsibilities with my businesses and volunteer work. When the original pharmaceutical company stopped manufacturing this wonderful remedy years ago, I no longer felt confident that the quality of my life could be reasonably maintained, nor would I be able to function with the full use of my faculties, continue working, traveling, and pursuing the auxiliary activities that constitute my very full life, personally and professionally.

After a hiatus of three years without it, my prayers were answered, Roger Sahni founded Nexco Pharma along with Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, and commenced manufacturing this extraordinary panacea. This miracle remedy was once again available as Nexavir, a virtual Godsend, helping me regain some strength, confidence, ability to work, and function with a quality of life that was definitely lacking without it.

I had been successfully using Nexavir in the injectable form, and now use it regularly in the current cream formulation that no longer requires a prescription. The daily dosage I use depends on the current state of my health. I use more frequent applications when my medical problems are acute not merely chronic, facing new surgery, or I'm feeling physically vulnerable, unable to function with any semblance of normalcy. This is a personal opinion, and dosage should be individually predicated by Nexco dosing instructions or a physician's specific recommendations.

Even my battery of doctors have been amazed when they have seen the rapid recovery from an acute disease reactivation episode, or a case of cold sores that did not heal with traditional medications, but were fully resolved within two days of using Nexavir. For anyone who has been medically challenged by CFIDS, fibromyalgia, shingles, post chemotherapy brain fog, hepatitis C, surgery, periods of extreme stress, or a number of other conditions it can remediate, Nexavir is nothing short of a miracle, a gift, and should be in one's quiver of medications that have absolutely no negative side effects! I believe in integrative medicine, a positive attitude, faith, and mustering the will to survive no matter what challenges need to be faced and overcome!

I extend my sincerest thanks to Roger Sahni and his colleagues on the board of Nexco Pharma, for continuing the mission of providing this wonderful remedy, for enabling me to pursue better health and quality of life! I am personally forever grateful that Nexavir is available again, and for the many benefits it offers to those of us who need it the most! Best wishes for the blessings of happiness, good health, and peace!
